Volunteer Experience

Counselor at Youth Lead the Change China

August 2012 - Present

I was a counselor and helped teach a shortened leadership and social entrepreneurship curriculum to a group of Chinese high school students who were on a tour of U.S. universities.

Counselor at Youth Lead the Change Myanmar

December 2012 - January 2013

I was part of a team of 7 Harvard students that traveled to Yangon, Myanmar over winter break to teach 60 high school students a week long conference on leadership and social entrepreneurship. The project culminated with a final presentation where high school students addressed a critical problem they saw in Myanmar and provided solutions to address it.

Counselor and Fundraising Director at Youth Lead the Change Boston

August 2012 - Present

I was in charge of fundraising and served as a counselor for the Youth Lead the Change program in Boston for 50 high school students. The program aims to build confidence, leadership skills, and empower students to improve their communities through social entrepreneurship.

Counselor at Harvard Philippine Forum J-Term Trip

January 2014 - Present

I was 1 of 14 students who traveled to the Philippines over winter break and worked with 2 not-for-profit organizations, Stairway Foundation and Childhope Asia, that focused on helping street children. We taught a series of self-expression workshops to the children, culminating in a final performance attended by the whole community to raise money for Childhope Asia.

Seminar Leader at H-LAB Japan

August 2014 - Present

H-LAB is a summer camp for Japanese high school students that aims to introduce a western, liberal arts type of education to participants. I designed and taught a course called "Advice for Young Leaders" which aimed to teach students the inter-relationship between philosophy and leadership using the Socratic seminar method.

MobiLab Team Member at Sao Paulo State Government

January 2016 - Present

Joint collaboration between Harvard and Brazilian students with the São Paulo government to analyze government transportation data and develop solutions to improve urban mobility. Worked with a 5-member group to develop a mobile app called MobiApp, which allows residents to directly report transportation concerns to government authorities.
